Student Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of this course (C or better), you will be able to:

- Demonstrate mastery in evaluating, integrating and documenting sources. [SLO]
- Support an argumentative thesis with persuasive evidence and reasoning. [SLO]
- Write essays that synthesize information to support analysis or argument. [SLO]

Course Objectives

In order for you to achieve those outcomes, we will work on the following:

- Examination of logical fallacies, rhetorical devices, advertising and propaganda, devices that distort and conceal meaning, and media influences.
- Development of essays which approach critical thinking in increasingly complex ways by formulating a clear, arguable thesis statement.
- Developing an organized, well-argued essay in support of the thesis.
- Supporting positions using different types of inductive and deductive arguments.
- Drawing inferences from a variety of sources (e.g., statistics, testimony, authority, examples).
- Producing writing assignments such as causal analysis, persuasion, and evaluation.
- Constructing a progression of substantial compositions that advocate one's own ideas by providing support for a claim, refuting the position of opponents, and avoiding common fallacies.
- Evaluate the written work of others by assessing content, structure, diction, tone, style, audience, and purpose.
- Clarifying meaning and avoiding unclear and biased language.
- Development of critical reading strategies, including reading for the main idea and argument.
- Identifying premises, unstated premises, and conclusions.
- Identifying inductive and deductive arguments.
- Evaluating arguments for validity and soundness.
- Examining point-of-view, bias, prejudice, and various sources of authority.
- Recognizing denotative and connotative language.
- Evaluating diction and tone, style and voice.
- Identifying and evaluating various rhetorical devices (e.g., satire, irony, overstatement, understatement, paradox, symbology, and analogy).
